Health Insurance Exchange Implementation: Early Challenges and Opportunities

Saturday, February 8, 2014

8:30am to 5:15pm

Breakfast and lunch provided.

Sterling Law Building
Yale Law School
127 Wall Street
New Haven, CT 06511

Join health policy and law experts from around the country in a one-day conference on the current status of health insurance exchange implementation. Panelists will discuss the history behind health insurance exchanges, what's going right and wrong so far, and how to balance state and federal roles in exchange implementation and operation.

Keynote Speaker: Henry J. Aaron, PhD, The Brookings Institution

Panel 1:

Health Insurance Exchange 101

This panel will examine the origin and purpose of health insurance exchanges and their role in the Affordable Care Act.

- Nicholas R. Parrillo, JD, PhD, Yale Law School (Moderator)
- Sarah Dash, MPH, Georgetown University Health Policy Institute's Center on Health Insurance Reforms
- Keith Ericson, PhD, Boston University School of Management
- Mark Hall, JD, Wake Forest University School of Law

Panel 2:

Implementation Status Check

This panel will examine the current status of exchange implementation, with a special focus on issues directly impacting consumers.

- Reed Abelson, MA, New York Times (Moderator)
- Lisa Monti, HealthSource RI
- Timothy S. Jost, JD, Washington and Lee University School of Law
- Jane Perkins, JD, MPH, National Health Law Program

Panel 3:

Cooperative Federalism in Action

This panel will examine how to balance state and federal roles in exchange implementation and operation.

- Abbe Gluck, JD, Yale Law School (Moderator)
- Kevin Counihan, MBA, Access Health CT
- Joel Ario, JD, MDiv, Mannatt Health Solutions
- Brett Graham, MBA, MPA, Leavitt Partners

The conference is open to the Yale University community, the greater New Haven community, and all others interested in health insurance exchange implementation. Registration is free for Yale University and New Haven community members. For all others, the registration fee is $30.
